

Guidelines for Joint EURO/ALIO Conferences (2016ff.)

- The conference should be named
Joint EURO/ALIO International Conference 20xx on Applied
Combinatorial Optimization

when it is organized in a country of a EURO member society, and Joint ALIO/EURO International Conference 20xx on Applied
Combinatorial Optimization

when it is organized in a country an ALIO member society.

- The organization of the conference series alternates between EURO and ALIO. When organized by EURO, the conference will be held in a country of a EURO member society; when organized by ALIO, the conference will be held in a country of an ALIO member society.
- The conference is open to everyone interested in the field; the conference language is English. Potential organizers should be able to demonstrate in advance that a reasonable number of participants (> 70) can be attracted to the conference.
- The Program Committee is co-chaired by a delegate from EURO and a delegate from ALIO. The Program Committee Co-Chairs will be selected in close cooperation between EURO and ALIO. The Organizing Committee is chaired by a delegate from the hosting organization. By default, the Co-Chairs of the Program Committee are members of the Organizing Committee, while the Chair of the Organizing Committee is a member of the Program Committee. The Program Committee should reflect a balance between members of EURO and ALIO.
- Proposals for hosting a joint international conference should be received by both the President of EURO and the President of ALIO at least two years in advance of the event. The proposal must be approved by both executive committees.
- Both EURO and ALIO must be identified as a co-organizers of the event. Both logos must be presented in prominent places of all promotion materials, on the website, in the abstract booklet etc. of the event.
- The conference organizers will provide a report to the executive committees of EURO and ALIO about the conference not later than six months after the meeting.
